

Surrealist Games

Broken Telephone Game

A game for at least three people (better with more). A phrase is chosen by person one; this phrase is then whispered from one person to another, with the last person repeating what they have heard.

The Unconscious Pillow

People are invited to write their dreams on scraps of paper then safety pin them to pillows. Send a photo of your dream to surrealerpool@gmail.com

What's in the box and what to do with it?

Pick a random item from a covered box then create an alternative use for the item, maybe recording it on their phones as a short film or photos - Is there a way of doing this on a random generator? I could send you pics of random objects.

Fictionary

People pick a word from the dictionary at random and create a new definition.

Definitions

This is the game where someone writes a question starting with "What is.....?", they fold the piece of paper over and pass it to someone else. This person writes the definition, usually starting "It is..."

Translation poems

You write a poem and translate it through google translate, keep a copy of the translation, then translate that into another language and so on, as many times as you wish, then finally translate it back into the language you started with.

www.surrealerpool.online